ABSTRACT

Based upon a survey conducted in 1974 by the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges (AACJC), this directory provides information on 1,203 community, junior, and technical colleges in the United States and its territories, including 1973 and 1974 data on enrollments and personnel. Following introductory material on the compilation of the directory, a data summary, analysis of trends, and a list of changes in institutions since the previous year are presented. Next, the directory lists each two-year college alphabetically by state or country and provides the following information: location; chief executive officer; telephone number; year college classes began; type of control or affiliation; AACJC membership; accrediting agency; type of academic calendar; October 1973 enrollments of full- and part-time freshman, sophomore and unclassified students; total enrollments as of October 1973; and full- and part-time and total enrollments for October 1974; full- and part-time faculty and administrators in 1974-75; and tuition and fees required. Tables are then presented summarizing enrollment and data by state for all institutions and for public and independent junior colleges, and showing distribution of size of enrollment in two-year colleges. Lists of community, junior, and technical college organizations and state administrators for two-year college education, and an alphabetical listing of colleges conclude the directory. (AYC)

INTRODUCTION

In late summer of 1974 the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges set out on a fact-finding task. Its goal was to gather the most accurate and timely data available on numbers of persons enrolled, numbers of faculty and staff employed, and other information pertaining to community, junior, and technical colleges in this country (as well as for some institutions in other countries). The results of that mission are set forth in this 1975 Directory.

The AACJC headquarters staff spent considerable time and energy on collecting, processing, and publishing the results of this annual survey. But we think the end product is well worth it. For we are well aware that national decision-making with regard to support and advancement of community-based postsecondary education depends on the availability of reliable information about trends in college going as well as other basic data. Individual citizens, too, are concerned as never before about having the facts at their disposal.

As the only national nonprofit professional organization serving all elements of community, junior, and technical colleges, the Association recognizes its responsibility to maintain a national data bank on two-year institutions. Information published in the Directory is but a part of the data which has been collected through this and other surveys and through various Association projects.

Some changes are evident in the 1975 edition of the Directory. The title, for example, acknowledges the inclusion of growing numbers of technical institutes and colleges in the listings. Their importance, of course, has long been recognized within the Association. They have made significant contributions to the expansion of career education options for Americans.

This year's publication also includes a breakdown of 1974 fall enrollments—part-time and full-time—as well as the usual totals.

The publication shows continued growth in registrations, as well as in numbers of institutions, though the rate of growth has decreased since the boom years of the 1960's (see analysis, page 2). With regard to expansion, of most interest is the increased number of additional campuses of community colleges.

The Directory contains, in addition to the college listings, names and addresses of state directors of community and junior college education and information on state and regional organizations of two-year institutions. Not an AACJC membership directory per se, the book includes names and data for many nonprofit nonmember institutions. We have tried to make the publication as comprehensive as possible by including nonprofit postsecondary educational institutions that are organized on a two-year basis, have state recognition and/or regional accreditation, and offer two-year associate degree programs. The Directory does not include information on proprietary institutions.

Response to the Directory survey was phenomenal. More than 1,100 of the 1,200 institutions surveyed returned completed questionnaires. The staff, while relying on the colleges for accuracy of reporting, attempted where possible to clarify and correct questionnaires when there appeared to be errors. We are most grateful to the institutions for their support and cooperation. We believe that they will be among the first to benefit from the availability of the data.

The Data/Some Interpretations

by Sandra Drake

Data received this year from the colleges listed on the following pages show a continued increase in both enrollment and in number of institutions. The figure below shows the sharp increases which occurred during the 1960's followed by the leveling off of enrollment and number of institutions by 1970.

Figure A

Year	Number of Colleges	Enrollment	Per Cent of Increase of Enrollment Over Preceding Year
1960	678	660,216	3.07
1961	678	748,619	13.39
1962	704	818,869	9.38
1963	694	927,534	13.27
1964	719	1,043,963	12.55
1965	771	1,292,753	23.83
1966	837	1,464,099	13.25
1967	912	1,671,440	14.16
1968	993	1,954,116	16.91
1969	1,038	2,186,272	11.88
1970	1,091	2,499,837	11.43

This year, the 1975 Directory lists a total of 1,203 institutions in the United States and outlying areas, an increase over the previous year. There are seven new institutions, and three new campuses; six institutions and six campuses listed in the 1975 Directory did not appear in the 1974 Directory. A few colleges closed, and some changed to four-year institutions. A number of colleges underwent reorganization, notably in Nebraska and South Carolina.

Five institutions listed in the 1974 Directory are not listed this year because their programs no longer are comparable to those of the other colleges listed. In addition, although we know of the existence of some institutions not previously listed, we have not listed them here since no response was received to our requests for data. This year, the two-year branch campuses of the Pennsylvania State University are not listed because of a new university policy. The Community College of the Air Force is listed for the first time in the 1975 Directory, and although its primary location is the only one listed, the college also enrolls 22,064 students at seven other locations. (See "Changes in Institutions Since the 1974 Directory.")

For this edition of the Directory, we asked that all institutions with multi-campuses or locations provide separate data for these locations. Most did; some elected to combine their data under a single entry. In order to maintain a consistent method of listing these data in the Directory, the total number of colleges is based upon a count of all separate locations of a college, institute, or district. This method of reporting the number of two-year colleges does differ from the method used for the previous year's Directory. In Wisconsin, for example, the absolute number of two-year institutions has not changed, although the method used to total these institutions has been altered.

Overall total enrollment for the institutions listed increased from 3,144,643 in the fall of 1973 to 3,527,340 in October 1974. This is an increase of 382,697 students or 12.17 percent in total enrollment. (Since these figures are derived from those colleges reported in the 1974 Directory as compared with those reported in the 1975 Directory, the statistics will be slightly different than if the colleges reported in the 1975 Directory were used.) In addition, the fall 1973 enrollment reported in this edition of the Directory will vary slightly from that reported in the previous year's Directory. This difference occurs largely because the colleges have, in the space of an academic year, reassessed their opening fall enrollments for the previous year.

Figures B, C, and D below indicate the growth in number and enrollment of two-year institutions in the early 1970's.

1973	232	130,438	−4.3
1974	222	132,893	+1.8

We have relied heavily on the accuracy of the reporting of the colleges in providing these statistics. In cases where colleges have been unable to provide breakdowns for previous (1973) fall enrollments, the total enrollment appears in the "Unclassified" as well as in the "Total 1973 Enrollment" column in Table I of the Directory. In a few cases the breakdowns of part-time and full-time enrollments do not equal the total enrollment; these occur because of the method of reporting by the colleges.

The format of the 1975 Directory differs slightly from that of the 1974 Directory. Full-time and part-time enrollments as of October 1974 are listed in Table I of the Directory and part-time enrollments largely account for the overall increase in total enrollments. Since the summary tables do not include the part-time enrollment as distinct from the total enrollment, and since this information was not summarized for 1973, the precise percentage increase due to part-time enrollment is not now available.

Projections of enrollments through the 1970's were made by the Association in 1970 and again in 1972. Figure E showing Projection A (based on total enrollments for the past fifteen years) and Projection B (taking into account the effect of public colleges on total enrollment) and Figure F based on 10 and 15 percent annual growth are shown below.

1972	2,922,000	2,939,000
1973	3,164,000	3,192,000

1975	3,643,000	3,692,000
1976	3,882,000	3,942,000
1977	4,121,000	4,191,000
1978	4,360,000	4,441,000
1979	4,599,000	4,691,000
1980	4,838,000	4,941,000

1970	1,080	2,405,000	2,514,000
1971	1,115	2,645,000	2,890,000
1972	1,150	2,910,000	3,324,000
1973	1,180	3,201,000	3,823,000
1974	1,205	3,521,000	4,396,000
1975	1,225	3,873,000	5,055,000

The Carnegie Commission on Higher Education in a 1970 report, The Open Door Colleges, also calculated enrollment projections. These projections, shown below, are based on (1) the percent of undergraduate enrollment to be absorbed by two-year institutions, and (2) the annual percentage increase by state for the past five-year period. According to these projections, a rapid rise in enrollments will continue until 1980.

Figure G

Year	Projection 1	Projection 2
1968	1,870,000	1,870,000	(actual enrollment)
1975	3,560,000	3,110,000
1980	4,430,000	3,740,000
1985	4,280,000	3,610,000

Looking at the growth in number of institutions and their enrollments through the 1960's as compared with that during the early 1970's and looking at these figures in comparison with projections made at three different times and by two different agencies, the following general statements could be made:

1. Increases in the number of institutions and in their enrollments continue to indicate the responsiveness of the two-year colleges to important educational needs.
2. The increase in the total number of institutions can be attributed to the opening and reorganization of multi-campus units within already existing institutions.
3. The increase in enrollment can be attributed to the emphasis on community-based education in the early 1970's and its influence on the increase in part-time enrollments.

Any errors in the data reported may result from misunderstanding the definitions, from issuing estimates rather than reporting actual enrollments, or from record-keeping procedures which are not comparable to the data requested. Although we have requested corrections where possible, there may be undetected reporting and/or clerical errors in the data that follow. No current data was received for approximately 100 of the institutions listed; in these cases, previous year's data were used.
